Extend your outdoor living

It might be winter in Brisbane but that doesn't mean you can't enjoy extended outdoor living all year round. With plenty of sunshine expected in the coming months the backyard can be an extension of comfortable indoor living with clever use of screens or glass enclosures to provide necessary shelter from cool temperatures and maximise the warmth of the sun.

Apollo Patios is a proudly Australian-owned company which has been helping thousands of satisfied Queenslanders build a better lifestyle in their own home since 1995. We asked Lyn Skews, from Apollo Patios, why so many people choose an outdoor home addition from Apollo? Lyn explains, "the strength of Apollo Patios is in how we can change our customer's lifestyles. Once our customers and their family and friends see how we can transform wasted outdoor space into a useable area for year-round living and entertaining they are absolutely amazed. This results in a very high rate of referral business and that means more customers building a better lifestyle with Apollo Patios."

Lyn adds, "at Apollo Patios, we value the investment our customers are about to make with us, so right from the initial quoting and design consultation, we make the entire process as streamlined and as painless as possible."

In many cases, customers already have definite ideas for the design and colour combination of their home addition and then they work with the assistance of one of Apollo's team of designers (a service provided free of charge by Apollo) to create their new home addition. Apollo will also complete the necessary plans and submit to council for approval.

Apollo Patios partially or fully-enclosed screen or glass enclosures allow you to add another liveable area to your home with a complete home addition which can be used as a new area for entertaining, a sunroom or even a parents' retreat. Glass or screens provide more protection from the harsh conditions of winter while still offering the versatility to open up to the cool breezes once the summer months come around.

Apollo Patios has a range of panel and glass or screen walls providing flexibility to create a stylish custom-designed enclosure that will fit perfectly with the existing features of your home.

You could be making the most of your new screen or glass enclosure sooner than you think and for less than you'd imagined.

As well as screen or glass enclosures the product range from Apollo Patios also includes patios, pergolas, carports and decks and will turn your wasted outdoor space into more room for living.
